APPENDIX K

FACILITIES

Administrative Sites and Structures

This appendix provides a list of facilities, sites and structures known to be within the planning area. This inventory not only includes historical or potentially historic and significant sites, but also includes sites and structures of non-historic value. Direction for retaining the non-historic sites is found in Chapter 2, management direction common to all alternatives. Structures are categorized as follows:

- Historical structure proposed for retention
- Structures needing historical evaluation
- Snow survey cabins
- Snow survey courses
- Snow survey sensor locations
- Mines
- Dams
- Drift fences
- Non-historic structures needing minimum requirement evaluation

Historical Evaluation and Retention

Prior to an agency decision to remove any structure or building in the wilderness that is more than 45 years old, an historical evaluation must be completed as mandated under the Section 106 regulations of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA). This evaluation process assesses the level of structural integrity and also researches any historic values that may be associated with that structure, building, or facility.

Historic values under the NHPA are categorized under four criteria at 36 CFR 60.4. These four are:

- Association with significant historic events;
- Association with significant historic persons;
- Significant architectural and workmanship characteristics of the building;
- Potential for research value.

Additional research is conducted to determine if the building being evaluated is an outstanding example of its kind in any of the four criteria. A building found to be a unique or an outstanding example of its type in any of the four categories is likely to be classified as potentially eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places. If a comparable example of its type is found to exist outside the wilderness, the site outside the wilderness would be the preferred choice for agency retention.

Structures eligible for the NRHP are not necessarily retained by the agency. Consultation with the California State Historic Preservation Officer, and if appropriate with the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation would be undertaken to identify those historic structures that may be identified for permanent agency retention. The Wilderness Act allows for the retention of those administrative structures necessary to manage the wilderness. Historic values to a wilderness area may be embodied in a standing structure or building that may be maintained by the agency if that structure or building is an important contributor to that wilderness; is the only or best example of its type; and does not pose a health and safety risk to the public or wilderness resource.

Those non-historic sites and structures and those historic properties that are appropriately mitigated can be allowed to decay naturally in place if they are constructed of native materials and do not pose a health and safety risk to the public or to the environment. Those sites and facilities that may be visually obtrusive, built of non-native materials, or contain hazardous materials may be actively removed by the agency by appropriate means. For instance abandoned mining claim areas, with large obtrusive pieces of equipment, hazardous materials, with long linear access roads will likely require more proactive management activity. For instance, at an abandoned mine, equipment may be removed, hazardous materials cleaned up, and access roads rehabilitated. Site-specific NEPA documentation and public consultation will be undertaken in a case-by-case basis.
